Comments	A landfill and processing/recycling plant will go on forever. 500 plus lorry movements a day will impact on life for miles around especially on villages, like Ashington, Washington and Storrington. The latter is already one of the most polluted villages in the UK. The previous landfill is now failing and leaching toxic waste into the Honeybridge stream, poisoning the woodland and wildlife in this area, which can only exacerbate the situation. The risk of polluting the acquifer that runs underneath the quarry and supplies fresh drinking water to homes along the coast from Brighton to Portsmouth, is seriously under threat from this application.
