Comments	Having driven many times along the proposed route I cannot agree that there is no safety issue. There is no footpath along 75% of the route meaning pedestrians have to use the road and along the West Hoathly Road section the road is restricted width with high sides of rocks and earth banks meaning there is no verge for pedestrians to step onto or vehicles to pull onto when a lorry forces its way through. It is also likely that if two commercial vehicles meet each other at the narrowest points which due to bends and the brow of a hill are totally blind then they will need to reverse in an extremely hazardous location
