Comments	This is not something that this village needs so close to residential housing, let alone the fact that we are going to be introducing lots of new homes to the village the last thing we need is 120 lorries turning up daily to dispose of waste right next to them, this is not going to be a selling point in any way shape or form and will surely reduce the want for people to move here in the future. Even more so has any planning at all gone in to consideration to the roads around the local areas that cannot handle the traffic already and that's without the 120 extra lorries a day turning up. I completely object this and I should think majority if people In ford would say the exact same. A chimney burning all day releasing all sorts of chemical gasses into the local area is not practical in the slightest. Have a think of the people that live in these areas for once.
