Comments	I strongly object to this development because of it's sheer size and the unsuitability of the location for something of this scale. On this flat rural and residential landscape, with a proposed residential of over 2000 houses surrounding it, how can this possibly be seen as suitable. For context, Sheffield has had a waste incinerator for years but it is located amongst former steel works, light industrial workshops and with the background of city centre and high rise flats. To have such a monstrosity at Ford would be entirely inappropriate as it would stick out like a sore thumb and tower over nearby residents.
