Comments	This vast new waste facility is twice the size of the scheme currently consented - but never constructed. To give this 'monster' proposal some perspective, the waste stack chimney if allowed to go ahead would put the majestic Chichester Cathedral in the shade - being a full 3 metres higher than the tip of the spire of the beautiful medieval cathedral. Put another way, the height of the chimney equates to the height of 10.5 normal houses placed one on top of the other, all within a stone's throw from the National Park and Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. The previous, much smaller, planning application was passed, but this project would be be far to big - the number of lorries using the local roads would potentially quadruple!
