Comments	I fully support the application for a new EfW incinerator, as well as the wider development that makes up the Ford Circular Technology Park. This will provide much needed disposal ability within the County, giving the best environmental outcome for the wastes being recovered. Direct energy recovery, with minimal transport to disposal facilities, is the best form of waste management for residual wastes from commercial and industrial sources, along with municipal solid wastes. The sorting, segregation and recovery of mixed recyclables completes the best environmental options on site. why transport this out of country, when it came done done to the benefit of the locality. It will also provide much needed jobs in the area for both skilled and unskilled workers, helping to keep West Sussex in a strong financial position. There is much misinformation about modern waste incineration. All new plants will have to meet recently updated environmental standards for incinerators, with exceptionally low levels of emissions. They are technologically advanced and really represent the clean option for waste recovery.
