Type of Comment	Objection
Comments	The emissions and the impact of these noxious fumes are still unknown and the overall affect it will have on the surrounding areas?? And how far would this fumes reach?? The sight of this being as high as 80 meters?? Why is this not situated in an industrial area or near similar structures and therefore would not impact on a supposed small residential and rural area which is far more vulnerable? The infra structures cannot cope with the volumes of cars now without adding huge industrial units bringing in massive lorry loads of waste? This kind of structure and operation is far far too large for this kind of area. I am all for recycling but this does not feel like a step in the right direction, there must be better solutions???
