| Comments                      | I live on the outskirts of Arundel and work there daily, Arundel is very tourist based and has a beautiful landscape- this would be an eyesore, yes- the size alone never mind potential smoke would damage the view of this beautiful area adjacent to a national park- but my main worry is about the huge amount of increased traffic- the extra lorries travelling though either way to this place would hurt the roads- we don't have the infrastructure and capacity for the increased traffic. I don't want this to be a case of 'why not where someone else lives' and it is always going to be somewhere, but with increased homes in and around the area and car use, we will never have the infrastructure to accomodate this, and it will destroy our countryside view. I also feel like there should have been a proper public meeting about this which may not have been possible due to covid-19 but should still have been done before obtaining planning permission, etc. |
