Comments	We already have major eyesores in the local area for energy generation that are GREEN RENEWABLES, e.g Rampion Wind Farm. I think that this it an inappropriate use of the land that is with CERTAINTY going to pollute the farmland around the proposed development, negatively affecting the quality of the produce. Surely we should be moving towards a time where we are Carbon neutral in 30 years. This means that once this plant is constructed, there will be a limited lifespan that means that it would be negative to incur all the construction emissions and have them wasted for a shorter period than it should be. This would be a generally negative construction that provides no benefits over further renewable sources that would have a far longer lifespan. I would not object to a plan that kept the site to the same standard but a greener one. Unfortunately this wouldn't be profitable as giving energy back to the national grid is going to be an income. I strongly object to this application.
