We need to reduce the amount of waste we produce, not look for methods to reduce it that will in themselves create more pollution. Incineration is a retrograde step, and to unnecessarily build a huge industrial incinerator in an area of outstanding natural beauty, on the boundary of The South Downs National Park, is sheer vandalism. Factor in the fact that the existing road infrastructure can't cope with the traffic already trying to use it, adding the lorries needed to operate this facility - plus all the traffic from new housing already approved - and the whole area will become gridlocked. It will be impractical to operate, be a blot on the landscape, will create local pollution and cause major traffic problems. The whole plan is ludicrous.
