Comments	I reluctantly accept the need for incinerators as part of our national waste strategy as they are preferable to landfill and/or exporting waste to vulnerable developing countries. However, this semi-rural location on a coastal plain without credible solutions for suitable HGV access is unacceptable and unsustainable, especially when developments of new housing numbering the thousands are planned for the surrounding villages. The building plans are not of a scale or nature appropriate to the character and function of the settlement of Ford or surrounding parishes in its landscape context; and unsympathetic and out of context to its semi-rural location.
