Comments	A development such as this is quite frankly abhorrent in an area such as this. The sheer size of the development in terms of height is clearly an eyesore and something that will have major visual pollution onto the surrounding areas. Development projects such as housing will be a none starter which will prevent much needed housing around this area. The height of the chimneys clearly demonstrates that the pollution that will be pumped out of the place is a danger to those nearest which I something as a local resident that I find extremely scary and worrying being on my doorstep. I deliberately chose a more rural location to escape the churn of urbanisations etc. I would be very interested in seeing the theory behind dumping this disgraceful project in such an area as this. There are far better locations for this to be housed upon that would serve the greater needs of the South East as this is clearly going to be used for. I strongly object in the fullest sense.
