I object strongly to this proposal, not on the requirement for some type of incinerator in West Sussex, but because it is idiotic to consider building such a plant at Ford BEFORE there is appropriate road infrastructure to cope with all the additional heavy road traffic in the local area. WSCC is guilty of this already with the numerous housing projects in planning, being built or recently completed with no supporting infrastructure be it better road networks, schooling or medical facilities. A potential mega incinerator only exacerbates this major problem. For goodness sake get a grip! If the need for an incinerator is so pressing, use a solution offering far less aesthetic and potential environmental damage and put the plant in the old lime works deep in the Downs between Shoreham and Steyning.
