We are currently in the process of exchanging contracts on a Redrow new build house at Meadow Gardens, Yapton and have just been informed of this ridiculous planning request for an incinerator. We were obviously very excited about this but now a very large cloud has descended upon the potential purchase such that we are considering pulling out and looking for an entirely different location to move to. There should be no hesitation from WSCC in rejecting this planning application once and for all. A massive intrusive building of this type should not be allowed in a quiet, flat countryside area being surrounded by small towns and a potential 1,500 housing complex possibly being built next door to it. I would object very strongly on the grounds of traffic, appearance, pollution despite all the 'guarantees' provided by the applicant who always bandy around quotes and figures but don't have to live with the problem. There should be rules preventing this type of building being allowed in an area comprising mainly of small villages. New housing and an incinerator are not compatible neighbours, how do you expect house building companies to sell any properties with this monstrosity looming large in the background. Please, please do not allow this incinerator to be built at any time. How would you feel about it being built in your backyard
