Comments	This facility will totall undermine to the character of the Arun Valley: a richly ecological valuably and historical part of the West Sussex coast. The design and scale of the installation is overwhelming and misplaced. The increased traffic needed to service the plant will create even more pressure on an already overcrowded road system. Emissions from the site will pollute residential areas. The sight lines to the towers will irrevocably damage the visual landscape and harm the valuable economic input to the area from the tourist and leisure industries. For the above reasons I object to the current plans for this site and consider it is an irreversible desecration of the local community and landscape. It is apparent that the opinions of those people most negatively affected by this plan are being disregarded and sacrificed to the interests of this misguided development.
