Comments	This enormous building (40m) its 2 towers (85m) and the visible plume 50-100m ontop of the towers will have a negative effect on the whole area. It will be as visable as the Spinaker tower set in the only undeveloped stretch of coastline between Bognor and Brighton. There is an existing permission on the site for a much smaller and more advanced technology gasification plant that would not have the impact that this proposal has. It would create the same amount of jobs. Incineration is the most polluting form of energy generation that is in existence. It produces more than double the amount of CO2 than coal does to get one unit of electricity. Incineration also diverts plastics away from being recycled and breaks the circular economy, which is the only long-term solution to our waste.
