Comments	There is absolutely no way that the roads should support and influx of HGVs, they are crowded now, plus a number of housing estates will add to the traffic. Moreover, this flood plain has problems and should not be suffering an extra burden. The south-east of England is overpopulated and overused. Send it to a rural area further north that needs the employment and the business. There is too much happening in this corner of England. PS, I am not a NIMBY, but the roads are hell at the best of times and about to get worse. Infrastructure in this area is also poor.
