Objection

I object strongly to the building of an incinerator at this location. It is far too close to current housing and with the potential of building more housing in this area it would be even worse. Despite what the developers would have you believe there would, by the nature of the building, it would almost certainly necessitate the production of noxious smells and Co2 from the process. This would have a huge negative impact on health and safety of local residents. How many lorries would be moving along the Ford road which is now two-way and probably there is no intention of widening them (nor should there be). This does mot take into account the eyesore created by the proposed towers. This is part of/ close the South Downs National Park. We must try and keep the National Park and surrounding areas as green as possoble. I understand there is are perfectly adequate waste disposal facilities within a reasonable area. Perhaps the site of the old brick works in Brighton might be considered. I know this sounds rather NIMBY but the old brick works has for years been an industrial site with little housing close by. There would however require review of the road infrastructure here as well.
