As a frequent visitor to Arundel, I always enjoy the beautiful view from The Monarch's Way on the Duke of Norfolk's estate and the South Downs National Park, down to the sea below - the Climping Gap, and the broad sway of open sky, green lands and blue water is spectacular. To place a monstrosity like the proposed Incinerator will ruin one of the rare unspoilt parts of the south coast. Tourists, and visitors, including myself, constantly wonder at this beautiful view, it draws much business to the local economy, the air is fresh, and it is a health enhancing experience to look down from this group of hills. When we are told constantly by government, both local and national, that the environment and people's health is now taking a much more important place in our list of priorities, my question is why this incinerator would be approved for development. The incinerator is not green energy, its emissions are toxic, adding that to the increase in emissions by the huge increase in HGV traffic too and from the facility. This indicates once again, that there is a lot of talk from government, both local and national, and very little I can see which is being done to make genuine changes in the correct areas to improve the environment and safeguard local people's health. I wish to make my objection known to this ill conceived, non sustainable, unhealthy, and generally damaging project.
