Comments	The proposal for an incinerator does not tackle the problem of over production of goods which are then thrown away. Anything that can be recycled, should be, but the availability of incineration as an easy option harms this. The incinerator would bring many hundreds of lorry movements along roads already crowded. Incinerators have been shown to produce harmful emissions and to degrade air quality. There are also problems of noise and dust associated with lorry movements. This is a proposal for an industrial facility in a predominantly rural landscape, and should be totally rejected.
