Comments	<input type="text" value="In view of the rapidly worsening climate situation around the world and the IPCC report published yesterday, there needs to be a radical rethink of the waste strategy. There are worldwide shortages of materials and yet WSCC is proposing to send the waste of this area, and many others, up in smoke, adding to the dangerous heating up of the planet. What is really needed is to monetise the waste - properly sort it and resell it. The time is now - scientists, governments, and the general population, are waking up to the need to make changes. Help them to do that! There will be a coming demand for recycled content in packaging, etc, rather than just stating it to be 'recyclable'. WSCC could get ahead of the curve, not behind it with this outdated policy. In addition, the actual plant will be a blight on a growing community, and the HGV traffic will cause misery and chaos on the unsuitable roads. Rethink and listen to the scientific evidence please. The world is changing and must change more and more quickly. This application is completely at odds with where we are now."/>
