Comments	Every single comment raised by residences in the area up to me writing this today has been an objection. I have yet to see an ounce of local public support for such a project and for good reason. The proposal would entail catastrophic consequences for the local environment and the livelihoods of residents in the area through the phenomenal rise in traffic that would arise should such a project go ahead. The local infrastructure is bad enough, the potholes are so large to the point that it is damaging the vehicles of residents who are forced into driving their own cars given the abysmal state of public transport in the area. Not only that but the forestry in the area belongs to the people in the area and any other member of the public that wishes to enjoy such scenery. The forestry does not belong to faceless corporations who put profit before the interests and wellbeing of the people affected by their decisions but rest assured, they will face a newly awakened fighting spirit in the locals. As a member of the Stop Loxwood Claypits campaign I will not only be objecting but actively fighting this proposal.
