Comments:

Having grown up in Tismans Common (where my mother still lives at our family home - [REDACTED]) I find it very disturbing that there are plans to destroy the lovely woodland. These woods are part of the country's heritage with certain trees dating back decades. As a child I would go on regular walks through the woods and can clearly picture the beauty of the area as well as the wildlife who will be greatly disturbed by the plans. I still go back to walk through this amazing place regularly with my family. It would be such a shame to lose this picturesque serene place. In addition, from a practical perspective, the roads are extremely narrow and driving can be very dangerous when trying to pass a car, let alone a large truck that's working on the site. There are also several potholes and heavy machinery going up and down the local roads will only make the quality of the roads even worse.
