Comments	The traffic on A281 and Loxwood road is dangerous enough as it is to solidify this point I encourage you to visit the bends in the A281 just before the Alfold garage. It is a 50mph road that is not wide enough to have the number of HGVs that already use it, let alone more. HGVs require wide turning space, therefore it is inevitable that they cross into the lane of on coming vehicles. I have been involved in numerous near misses there already. Having then spent time looking into the application and seeing that there are 25 years sufficient supply of clay in local clay pits, there is absolutely no need to accept this application, and in doing so risking lives on our local roads.
