Comments	<input type="text" value="I choose to live in the beautiful countryside in Loxwood it is peaceful and hardly and light pollution we have no street lights to encourage wild Life last thing we need is the beautiful woodland lit up at night which will disturb all the wild life . So many local people now have dogs and use the woods for walks plus the other hikers and ramblers. And as a result the well-being and mental state are really good. And with the mental health state in the country it should be a top priority. Everyone is trying to decrease carbon emissions this is doing the exact opposite everywhere you go there are new housing estates surely we should all support woodland and the benefits it supplies and if we need waste sites I should think there is enough brown and disuse sights in a more build up area , are local roads are not made for huge lorries to go up and down. Plus the noise an dust and dirt. Surely this country isn't all about making money on every project but people's lives and happiness."/>
