Comments	What complete and utter madness. When will people realise that you don't need bricks to build houses. There are many other sustainable mass produced materials that can be used. As to having a waste transfer station smack bang in the middle of woods in the countryside is ridiculous and a complete contempt for the neighbours, the nature and humanity. If HDC cannot find good enough reason not to permit this they seriously need to review their policies and do what is right for their people. This will destroy the local environment and I will never see this restored in my lifetime and losing such woodland will be a travesty. This should be a big fat NO.
