Comments	This tranquil area of ancient woodland is home to over 25 different species of butterfly including Purple Emperor, Wood White & Brown Hairstreak. It also supports a huge variety of birds including such rarities as Goshawk, Woodcock & Lesser Woodpecker. The habitat that all this life depends on will be badly degraded if this money making scheme is allowed to go through. At a time when we are all being encouraged to consider the environment and the pressure is on to become more carbon neutral, I can't imagine anything more ridiculous than to countenance a scheme whereby construction waste is transported from the London area by upwards of 40 HGV lorries per day for 33 years and then buried deep in a beautiful ancient wood in West Sussex. My Grandchildren derive huge pleasure from walking these woods and observing all the diverse wildlife. Will they be able to take their own children in the future or will it be reduced to a industrial wasteground in the name of greed ?? Hopefully the council can help this wonderful consortium to identify a more suitable location to dig their hole and dump their construction waste, possibly nearer to where the waste emanates from.
