Comments	Living in (what was!) a rural community it is becoming increasingly hard to find quiet places to listen, watch and breath nature, and this proposal is yet again encroaching on this. The environmental impact is huge for wildlife and bird life, not just brought about by the proposed distruction but also by adding the pollution load to the quality of our air, which is already being reduced due to the massive increase in the traffic load in the area. It is becoming increasingly difficult to find somewhere to walk quietly and reflect (as well as exercising). There is already a huge problem with people coming out of towns and walking through farmland without permission by reducing this further will only increase an already existing problem. The woodland trust etc. are already trying to make a massive push for us to be planting more trees, and yet it seems appropriate to rip out an already well established woodland. This is devastating.
