I don't believe this to be a suitable site for the purpose intended. It is a greenfield site, not brown field. No end of wildlife and ancient woodland would be destroyed to accommodate this proposal. To have HGVs running up and down the roads leading too and into this site will also be an accident waiting to happen. The roads are country roads, visibility in and out of the site would be terrible. Also driving alongside these HGVs along the road would (and is when you meet the same type of vehicle currently) is unnerving and dangerous. The clay pit would bring no benefit to the area at all. `It s currently a tranquil and beautiful place to walk. It would be an absolute travesty if this were to get the go ahead.
