Comments	<input type="text" value="I object to the proposed clay pits at Loxwood. There is no demand for this clay, therefore the site is unnecessary. The woodlands provide a tranquil place for walking and enjoying the West Sussex countryside. Destroying these habitats will have a major impact on local wildlife and species. If covid has taught us anything, it is that nature is necessary for all our well-being and mental health . The country roads are already congested due to the ever increasing new housing developments in the area, therefore the addition of yet more traffic from the HGVs will only compact this. However the greater concern is the loss of our public rights of way and the safety concerns of HGVs using these spaces present us with."/>
