Comments	I strongly object to the proposed development by Loxwood Clay Pits. It isn't needed, it isn't wanted and let's be honest it is purely for the financial gain of the Loxwood Clay Pits company. A company which has no connection with Loxwood, no interest in Loxwood or surrounding villages other than what they can get out of it for themselves. Lets not be deceived by the fancy words in their planning application which is no more than a smokescreen and designed to give them some credibility. We as local residents will receive no benefits from this proposal stand to lose an environment which will NEVER be replaced despite the good intentions Loxwood Clay Pits lead us to believe. So many people have already objected to this application and list no end of things that will be damaged or lost forever particularly in the natural world so I wont list these things as it is patently obvious. What cant be underestimated and is not measurable is the number of people who use the area for recreational purposes. From my own experience from running the Rudgwick Scout group over the last thirty years I know how many young people have benefited from the use of this area for both hiking and map and compass practise. It isn't just the residents of today who are being denied the use of this area but a whole new generation of new young people. It is a complete nonsense.
