Comments	I've been really upset about the possibility of the clay pit and waste site that will not only destroy our small, wonderful, woodland and wildlife but bring debris, light and noise pollution to the surrounding, rural areas. After much research, I have learnt that there is little benefit for anyone to proceed and there must be much more suitable locations than this tiny, remote space with just rural access that is unsuitable for the expectant large vehicles. There currently isn't a demand for brick-making clay and or any real purpose to locating the waste site here - surely you need non-rural access that is suitable for HGVs, not to mention the safety of the other traffic and not to mention walkers, cyclists, wildlife! The access route on the development plan is bizarre, taking the longest most rural way through. The entrance location is the only place for local residents to park the car for safe walking and exploring the woodlands with the family. I understand this will be lost if the development goes forwards.
