Comments	<input type="text" value="When the history of Loxwood comes to be written in years to come, I hope very much that there is no chapter related to an area of outstanding natural beauty in the village being wantonly destroyed by an out of area commercial enterprise whose only concern was to make money. It was not concerned that lives of local people and those of surrounding villages would be blighted for a couple of generations by hundreds of heavy lorries trundling through unsuitable country roads to bring building rubbish from across the south of England to dump in a pit freshly excavated to extract clay for building bricks that nobody needs. Therefore, I urge the planners most strongly to reject this application forthwith."/>
